Sometimes in life, we are given a choice between two things. How do you choose only one? Well, in 2009, Volkswagen, a German car company, came up with the Fun Theory to help us decide. It's really simple. If something is more fun than something else, it's better. If that's true, then we should try to make everything more fun, right?

Take throwing your trash into the trash can, for example. Far too many people just throw their trash onto the street. So Volkswagen made a special trash can. When people threw their garbage into it, they would hear a sound. The sound made it seem like the trash was falling into a very deep hole. People passing by thought it was great. And so fewer people threw their trash onto the street, and more put it into the can where it belonged.

This is just one example of the Fun Theory, but it can be applied to just about anything. So don't be afraid to start making everything more fun!
