The movies of Hayao Miyazaki are loved for both their beauty and imagination. Another feature of his films is his strong female leads. Characters like Nausicaä, Chihiro, and Sophie, for example, are all independent and determined and will not think twice before fighting for what they believe in.

In Nausicaä of the Valley of the Wind, the lead female character, Nausicaä, is the princess of a land that has been completely destroyed by war. To end the conflict, she must take her sick father's place as the leader and become a figure of hope for her people.

In Spirited Away, the young Chihiro ends up in the spirit world, where she is forced to work very hard. Despite her youth, she earns the spirits' respect through her bravery and determination*. Finally, in Howl's Moving Castle, Sophie is turned into an old woman by a jealous witch. However, this doesn't keep her from saving Howl and her new friends.

Miyazaki once said, "Any woman is just as capable of being a hero as any man." His films certainly prove this to be the case.
