

Lesson 9

The Story behind Eponyms

I. 文意字彙與詞類變化：36%

- edit 1. Henry's teacher asked him to e t his paper because there were too many mistakes in it.
- feature 2. Our school concert will f e a performance by a famous singer. It's so exciting!
- alternative 3. To avoid the side effects of modern cancer treatments, some patients prefer to try a e, more traditional methods and medicines.
- chased 4. The police c ed after the man who had stolen the old lady's purse.
- derived 5. Many English words are d ed from European languages such as Latin, Greek, and French.
- modify 6. The story Ryan wrote is really touching, but he needs to m y some of the difficult expressions to make it more readable.
- reveal 7. The teacher would not r l the answer to the question, but she did explain how to solve it.
- widespread 8. There is a w d belief among most investors (投資者) that the company is going to go broke. No wonder many have already sold their stocks.
- combination 9. Success is often a (combine) of talent and hard work.
- exist 10. Lucas thinks the locals are just telling tales. The Loch Ness monster doesn't actually (existing).
- constant 11. The machine we bought last year broke after (constantly) use.
- gossiping 12. Judy enjoys (gossip) with her friends about boys and teachers. It always puts her in a good mood.

II. 文法選擇：15%

- (A) 1. _____ is said that one or two movie stars will attend the conference next Friday.
(A) It (B) That (C) What (D) There
- (D) 2. No matter _____ you are, you should always show respect to others.
(A) what (B) how (C) when (D) who
- (C) 3. The police said the icy snow _____ the road is probably what caused the car accident.
(A) covers (B) covered (C) covering (D) to cover
- (B) 4. Students are encouraged to consider and explore the way language changes _____.
(A) for free (B) over time (C) in turn (D) after all
- (D) 5. Austin has always wanted to travel _____ the world before he dies.
(A) in (B) at (C) on (D) around

III. 綜合測驗：15%

Have you ever heard the term “paparazzi”? Or 1. “Photoshop”? Both of these are examples of eponyms. An eponym is a word that began as the name of someone or something but then 2. a new meaning.

It is said that “paparazzi” came from a film character 3. Paparazzo, a photographer who took pictures of celebrities’ private lives. After the film was released, people began using “paparazzi” to refer to all photographers who go after celebrities.

Eponyms such as “Photoshop” started off as product names and are now commonly used to describe an action. 4. it was first released in 1987, Photoshop has become the most popular software used by photographers and designers. It became 5. widely known that people began to use “Photoshop” to mean “to edit” a photo.

Eponyms are helpful in creating new words in our society. Who knows what new words we will add to our languages next?

- (A) 1. (A) how about (B) why not (C) let’s (D) what if
- (C) 2. (A) took part in (B) filled in (C) took on (D) handed out
- (B) 3. (A) calls (B) called (C) calling (D) to call

- (D) 4. (A) After (B) When (C) Before (D) Since
(A) 5. (A) so (B) very (C) too (D) such

IV. 句型練習：16%

(1-2 題以 It's said/believed/reported...that S + V....改寫句子)

1. Some people believe that fortune cookies actually originated in Japan.

It is believed that fortune cookies actually originated in Japan.

2. Some journalists report that the company will host an event in cooperation with the museum.

It is reported that the company will host an event in cooperation with the museum.

(3-4 題以 No matter wh- S + V, S + V....合併句子)

3. { You do something for a living.
 { You should take it seriously.

No matter what you do for a living, you should take it seriously.

4. { Your problems may be serious.
 { They are small compared with mine.

No matter how serious your problems may be, they are small compared with mine.

V. 引導式翻譯：9%

1. 經理在公司裡扮演一個重要的角色，尤其是當老闆不在時。

The manager plays an important role in the firm, especially when the boss isn't around.

2. 廣告公司一直都要想出新的方法來促銷產品。

Advertising agencies always have to think up new ways to promote products.

3. 救難隊被迫放棄搜索。在如此惡劣的天氣下，駕駛直升機太危險。

The rescue team was forced to abandon their search. It's simply too dangerous to fly a helicopter in such bad weather.

4. Matthew 總是在上課時抄筆記，所以他之後就可以複習所有課堂上的重點。

Matthew always takes notes in class, so he can review all the key lecture points later on.

VI. 閱讀測驗：9%

Some eponyms come from the names of popular products. Others originate from the names of scientists and inventors, or writers and their stories.

We often, for example, honor famous scientists and inventors by using their names to refer to units of scientific measurement*. The word “volt,” for instance, which refers to a unit for measuring the strength of an electric current*, is named after the scientist Alessandro Volta. Another unit of power called the “watt” comes from the inventor James Watt.

In literature, the seventeenth-century Spanish novel Don Quixote gave birth to the word quixotic, which means “not practical,” or “not likely to succeed.” Similarly, the name “Romeo,” which comes from Shakespeare’s play Romeo and Juliet, can be used to refer to any man who is very much in love with a woman. Even the writers themselves have given their names to certain styles of writing. The term “Dickensian,” for example, which comes from the nineteenth-century British writer Charles Dickens, describes stories that deal with poor social conditions and odd characters.

So many eponyms can be found in English. This makes the language more interesting and fun to learn. You name it, and English has it!

註：measurement 測量 electric current 電流

- (A) 1. What is the purpose of this passage?
- (A) To explain the origins of certain eponyms.
 - (B) To answer some questions about eponyms.
 - (C) To challenge the need for creating eponyms.
 - (D) To honor great achievements in different fields.
- (A) 2. According to the passage, what is NOT true about eponyms?
- (A) The word “quixotic” today is used to mean “practical.”
 - (B) Some of them come from the names of popular products.
 - (C) Some, like the word “volt,” come from scientists’ names.
 - (D) The eponym “Dickensian” refers to stories about poor social conditions.
- (C) 3. Based on the passage, how could we describe the author’s attitude towards using and creating eponyms?
- (A) Neutral. (B) Not clear. (C) Positive. (D) Negative.