Mark's lifelong dream of traveling abroad finally came true with a trip to Italy this summer. Preparing for the trip was an exciting task. He got his passport, learned basic Italian phrases, and planned visits to some famous tourist spots.

On the plane for Italy, Mark was in high spirits. The long flight did little to reduce his excitement. As he landed in Rome, he couldn't wait to look around the city, but he soon realized that overcoming the language problem would be quite a challenge. Though he had studied some Italian at home, using it in real conversations with native speakers* was not easy. Despite this, the friendly and patient locals made him feel more at ease.

Italian food, too, soon made him feel at home. In fact, the wonderful meals were probably the best part of Mark's trip. He tasted traditional pizzas and gelato*, and he also learned that in Italy, dining is not only about the food but also about spending time and talking with others.

In addition, historical sites gave him lots of food for thought. Visiting the Colosseum and the Vatican was like stepping into history. Mark was awestruck by the building designs and the rich stories of these ancient places. Also, Pompeii, with its well-kept ruins, offered a unique look into everyday life all those many years ago.

This journey to Italy was far more than just a vacation for Mark; it was a life-changing experience. He learned to deal with new situations, communicate in a completely foreign language, and appreciate different cultures. The trip not only broadened his horizons* but also left him eager for more adventures abroad.
