7-Eleven has about 66,000 stores around the world. Over 12,000 of these are in North America. This is actually where the company’s story first began. It was founded in Dallas, Texas in 1927. In that year, a worker at a big ice company started a little store in one of the ice houses. His name was Joe Thompson.

In the beginning, Joe only sold a handful of items, such as eggs, milk, and bread, that needed to stay cold. They were also items people bought regularly. People loved the store. They only needed to buy one or two items and there weren’t long lines and crowds like in large grocery stores.

The idea worked so well that Joe started opening more little stores all over Texas. At first, they were known as “Tote’m Stores.” In 1946, he decided to change the name. He wanted to remind customers of the stores’ new opening hours: 7:00 am to 11:00 pm. However, one thing remained constant: the company kept on growing. Today, a new 7-Eleven opens somewhere in the world every 3.5 hours!
