(B) However, whether you pick plastic or paper, remember that you always have the choice of bringing your own bag on the basis of your values and needs.

(C) Different things affect which bag people choose and how they feel about it.

(D) A plastic bag costs about TWD 0.35 to make, while a paper bag costs four to five times more.

(E) By contrast, paper bags can also break down into smaller pieces, but they are not harmful to living things.

Have you ever been to a supermarket where the cashier takes out a paper bag instead of the usual plastic bag? Some might just take the bag without thinking. Some may support the choice. 31. The results of choosing one over the other are also different.

Both types of bag can be broken down into smaller pieces. However, plastic bags can take up to one thousand years to break down and are usually not recyclable. This can lead to serious problems. For example, if a plastic bag is washed into the ocean, the broken-down pieces may get consumed by fish and other marine life, often leading to their deaths. 32.

Aside from ecological considerations, cost also matters. While both are low-cost options, plastic bags are still the more economical* choice for distribution. 33. Therefore, plastic bags are used in large numbers and more often than paper bags. Additionally, plastic bags can typically hold more weight due to the stretchable* nature of plastic, while paper bags can easily tear when their contents get heavy.
